4 次の英文を読み、下の問いに答えなさい。

Yosuke is a student at Sapporo Shinyo Junior High School. He is a Drama club member and he is in the practice room after school. Mr. Stacey, the English teacher from America, comes in.

Mr. Stacey: Hi, Yosuke. How are you?

Yosuke: Well... I'm OK...

Mr. Stacey: You don't sound good.

Yosuke: Last night, after I finished studying, I was reading a comic book in my room. Then my mother suddenly came in with a cup of tea and said, "What are you doing? I thought you were studying." I wasn't happy and said, "What do you mean? I've already finished studying!"

Mr. Stacey: What did she say then?

Yosuke: "How long did you study?" "For thirty minutes," I said. She said, "Studying for only thirty minutes isn't enough."

Mr. Stacey: And then?

Yosuke: I said, "You always tell me to study harder. Why should I listen to you?" She just put the tea on the desk. She looked really sad. She left my room without a word.

Mr. Stacey: Did she? How do you feel now?

Yosuke: I feel sorry. My words made her sad. This morning she said, "I'm sorry, I said such a thing." I also tried to say, "I'm sorry," but I couldn't.

Mr. Stacey: I think she understood what you wanted to say. Family members can sometimes understand without words, but words can make communication easier.

Yosuke: Did you talk a lot with your mother?

Mr. Stacey: Yes, When I was in junior high school, my mother and I talked all the time. We sometimes disagreed, but things were usually good. Saying "Thank you" and "I'm sorry" is very important even among family members.

Yosuke: Do you think I should say I'm sorry?

Mr. Stacey: Yes, I do.

Yosuke: Oh, I should tell her one more thing.

Mr. Stacey: What is it?

Yosuke: I'll say, "Thank you for the tea." Oh, and thank you very much, Mr. Stacey.

November 10, 2010

Dear Emily,

Sorry I didn't reply to your last e-mail. There was something wrong with my computer and I couldn't check my e-mail for a while.

A good friend of mine, Mary, will visit Tokyo next month. She is interested in Japanese culture, so she wants to talk with Japanese people. Therefore, she would like to attend Japanese classes while she is there. Japanese is becoming more and more popular these days in America, but there are few people who can teach it. So there are few classes here in Portland, Oregon where we live.

Could (help, to find, you, her) a class in Tokyo? I know that you have (1) Japanese classes in the area, and I thought you might have some information or contacts. Of course you don't have to go to the class with her. Please just (2) her how to get there. If she can attend a class or two, she can tell her friends here in Portland what a real Japanese class is like. I'm sure she will enjoy it.

If you can help, she and I would () very happy. After December 3, you can get in touch with her at the Princess Hotel, 3234-4789, or if you don't mind, I can give her your phone number. If you are not able to help, that's also all right.

Thanks, Emily!

Best wishes,

John
